DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The use of the trademark VELCRO has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology-hook and loop fastener.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Handler (US 1,445,312).

Handler discloses a raincoat with the structural shape as claimed including a single sleeve 14 that is of waterproof material. (See Handler, figures 1-3 and lines 13-85).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Moats (US 2,345,059).

Moats discloses a coat with one sleeve 13 and a sealable opening for the other arm 15 to extend there through. The coat is structured as claimed and extends to cover the legs. However, Moats does not specifically disclose the coat as being waterproof. Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the coat of any material desired such as a waterproof material in order to gain the benefit of such a material for a desired end use since it has been held to be within the skill of one of ordinary skill in the art to select a known material for the desired end use. (See In re Leshin 125 USPQ 416).

Claims 3-16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 17 allowed. None of the cited references alone or in combination disclose the method of using the combination garment and the garment itself including the chest and pants access pockets, the hood compartment and hood, the flap and fasteners to cover the openings and the circular collar as claimed in claims 3-17.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
